

| Prophecy in Isaiah | Prophecies of Christ's first coming                                                                                                        | New Testament fulfillment or connection       |
|--------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------|
| Is. 1:18           | Believers' sins will be made white as snow                                                                                                 | 1 John 1:7; Rev. 1:5 & 7:14                   |
| Is. 4:2            | He will be called the Branch of the Lord - refers to a righteous king and rightful heir rising from the royal lineage of King David | Matt. 1:1–17; Luke 3:23–38                    |
| Is. 6:1–5          | Is. sees the glory of the Lord, interpreted in relation to Christ's glory                                                                  | John 12:37–41                                 |
| Is. 7:14           | The sign of Immanuel; virgin conception and birth                                                                                          | Matt. 1:18–23                                 |
| Is. 8:8, 10        | Immanuel, "God with us"                                                                                                                    | Matt. 1:23                                    |
| Is. 9:6            | The promised child and Son, bearing divine and royal titles                                                                                | Luke 1:31–33; John 1:1–14                     |
| Is. 11:1, 2-3      | A Branch arising from Jesse's line and spirit resting upon him                                                                             | Rom. 15:12; Rev. 5:5; Matt. 3:16–17; 12:17–18 |
| Is. 28:16          | God's chosen cornerstone in Zion                                                                                                           | Rom. 9:33; 1 Pet. 2:6                         |
| Is. 29:18–19       | The deaf hear, the blind see, and the afflicted rejoice                                                                                    | Matt. 11:4–5; Luke 7:21–22                    |
| Is. 32:3–4         | Sight, hearing, understanding, and speech restored                                                                                         | Matt. 11:5                                    |
| Is. 35:5–6         | The blind see, the deaf hear, the lame walk, and the mute speak                                                                            | Matt. 11:4–5; 15:30–31                        |
| Is. 40:3–5         | A messenger prepares the way of the Lord                                                                                                   | Matt. 3:1–3; Mark 1:2–3; Luke 3:3–6;          |
| Is. 42:1–4         | God's chosen Servant, endowed with the Spirit, brings justice to the nations                                                               | Matt. 12:17–21                                |
| Is. 48:16          | The speaker refers to the Lord God and His Spirit                                                                                          | John 14:16–17                                 |
| Is. 49:5–6         | The Servant restores Israel and becomes a light to the Gentiles                                                                            | Luke 2:29–32; Acts 13:46–47                   |
| Is. 50:6           | The Servant is struck, abused, and spat upon                                                                                               | Matt. 26:67; 27:26–30                         |
| Is. 52:13–15       | The Servant is humiliated but ultimately exalted; His suffering astonishes the nations                                                     | Rom. 15:20–21; Phil. 2:8–11                   |

| Prophecy in Isaiah | Prophecies of Christ's first coming                                                                                                                                                                                     | New Testament fulfillment or connection                                                                                               |
|--------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Is. 53:1-7         | The message about the Lord's Servant is not believed; The Servant is despised, rejected, and bruised for iniquities; The Lord lays the iniquity of others upon the Servant; The Servant is like a lamb led to slaughter | John 12:37-38; Rom. 10:16John 1:11; Luke 23:18-23Matt. 8:16-17; 1 Pet. 2:24-252 Corin. 5:21; Acts 8:32-35; Matt. 27:12-14 |
| Is. 55:3           | The sure mercies promised to David                                                                                                                                                                                      | Acts 13:34                                                                                                                            |
| Is. 59:20-21       | The Redeemer comes to Zion and establishes God's covenant                                                                                                                                                               | Rom. 11:26-27                                                                                                                         |
| Is. 60:1-3         | The Lord's light shines and the nations come to that light                                                                                                                                                              | Luke 2:30-32; 4:16-21; Rev. 21:23-24.                                                                                                 |

Future Prophecies:

|              |                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Is. 2:2-4    | He will judge the nations and turn weapons into plowshares and nations will no longer war against another.                                                                                              |
| Is. 9:6-7    | The Davidic throne and everlasting kingdom                                                                                                                                                              |
| Is. 11:1-10  | Worldwide peace and righteous kingdom.                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Is. 25:8     | The Lord will swallow up death forever and wipe away tears from all faces.                                                                                                                              |
| Is. 42:1-4   | Christ's first ministry fulfills the passage in an important sense, while its worldwide justice is not yet complete.                                                                                    |
| Is. 61:1-2   | Christ inaugurated His ministry of salvation, while the day of vengeance remains future.                                                                                                                |
| Is. 62:11    | Restoration and glory promised to Zion at His future return                                                                                                                                             |
| Is. 63:1-6   | Jesus returns bodily and gloriously to defeat His enemies and establish His righteous kingdom.                                                                                                          |
| Is. 65:17-25 | God will create new heavens and a new earth, and former things will not be remembered.Jerusalem will be created a delight, infants will live long lives, and the wolf and lamb will graze together. |
| Is. 66:22-24 | All mankind will come to bow down before the Lord in the new heavens and new earth.                                                                                                                     |

Roughly 30% of the Bible consists of predictive prophecy, of which about 50% of these prophecies have yet to be fulfilled.